Happy Fourth of July from ProQuip Industrial Tank Agitators

We hope you enjoyed our last blog post on summer family road trips. We received several compliments on it. Thanks to those that gave us feedback. We appreciate and encourage any input, good or bad, on our blogs or other areas of business. Our goal is always to provide the best possible customer experience around your purchase of ProQuip industrial tank agitators and mixing solutions.

The topic of this blog is related to a very important and celebrated date in U.S. history – the Fourth of July. On this date 240 years ago in 1776, the United States declared its independence from Great Britain.

The meaning of the U.S. Fourth of July celebration varies depending on your age. For those too young to know American history, July 4th means fireworks, cookouts, and parades. Those that are older recognize it for the same things, but there is added significance. The significance grows with every decade of life lessons learned. For with every decade, comes a better understanding – and appreciation - of what it takes to create, build and sustain a great country.

Great countries always face tremendous challenges and require integrity, sacrifice, perseverence and hard work across many generations to sustain growth and prosperity. But the rewards are great – individual freedom, the opportunity to pursue happiness, public safety and many others.

At ProQuip, we take pride in making our industrial tank agitators in the U.S. and following in our home country's tradition of meeting everyday challenges, large and small, to help our customers, our company and our employees to continue to grow and prosper.

This tradition began when ProQuip was founded in 1969 in Cleveland, Ohio, USA. Like the United States, ProQuip was established on a specific set of principles to ensure the satisfaction and success of those it serves - its customers. These principles include engineering tank agitators that will expertly meet specific performance/application requirements, manufacturing agitators from the best components and with the highest production standards, and providing comprehensive pre and post sale support to ensure all customer objectives are met throughout the product lifecycle.

ProQuip is proud to have created, grown and sustained a successful company for over 47 years that has lived by these principles and helped companies around the world achieve their goals. On behalf of all ProQuip employees, we wish you a happy and safe Fourth of July. We appreciate your business and look forward to helping you meet all your future industrial mixer needs.
